

Mrs. Stacy Axe is the Art teacher at Franklin Phonetic Primary School. She started teaching art in a school atmosphere in August 2020. Previously she has taught Art to adults and children in private settings.

At a young age, she was told by a tutor that she could not be an artist and that she would never finish college. Stacy Axe strongly believes that children can do wonderful things with positive influences in their life, and Art is a perfect way to influence.

Mrs. Axe studied Art at Phoenix College earning her Associates degree and then continued her education to Arizona State University (ASU) earning her Bachelor of Art Studies in 2011.

Before settling in Prescott Valley, Mrs. Axe was the full-time caregiver of her aged grandfather until he passed away in 2018 at 102. During this time, she continued taking college Art classes, raising her three children and volunteering working with children of all ages at her church.

When Mrs. Axe is not teaching art she is working on her own personal artwork. She has experience with a wide range of art mediums including watercolor, acrylic, oil paint, pastel, ceramics, sewing, mix medium, photography, pencil, and markers. What she isn't familiar with, she works with that medium until she is familiar.
